PM Hun Sen Recalls the History of Peace Negotiations for Cambodia

AKP Phnom Penh, January 20, 2016

Samdech Akka Moha Sena Padei Techo Hun Sen, Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Cambodia, has recalled some key historical events regarding the peace negotiations for Cambodia.

“Jan. 20, 1988-Jan. 20, 2016 is the 28th anniversary of the second phase of peace negotiations for Cambodia between the former King of Cambodia, His Majesty the late King-Father Samdech Preah Norodom Sihanouk, and me in Saint-Germain-en-Laye, after the first phase on Dec. 2, 1987 in Fère-en-Tardenois, France,” said the Cambodian premier in a Facebook post this morning.

According to Samdech Techo Hun Sen, the whole-day negotiation on Jan. 20, 1988 focused on the general aspect to find an internal resolution between Khmer and Khmer in order to completely end the civil war.

“Even though at that time, the People’s Republic of Kampuchea controlled more than 90 percent of territory and people, I was committed to find peace for Cambodia and to accept the return of people from the Cambodian-Thai border refugee camps,” he said. “I decided to end the war between the Khmers even if the then negotiations faced difficulties and took much time, anyway it was better than fighting. I made a decision that brought about benefits and win-win solution to Cambodia until now.”

Samdech Techo Hun Sen underlined that happiness and living condition of the Cambodian people 28 years ago and now show clearly that peace have brought opportunities to the people and royal government to reconstruct and develop the country. “I would like to thank all the compatriots who have contributed to defending peace in our country until today,” said the premier.

Foreign Ministry Hosts Reception to Mark Establishment of ASEAN

AKP Phnom Penh, January 12, 2016 –

Cambodia's Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation H.E. Hor Namhong hosted here on Saturday a reception to mark the establishment of the ASEAN Community and to welcome the New Year 2016.

On the occasion, H.E. Hor Namhong said this New Year 2016 will further enhance the friendship and cooperation between Cambodia and other respective countries.

“This year 2016 is a historical milestone year for ASEAN with the commencement of ‘ASEAN Community’ since Jan. 1, 2016,” he said.

The establishment of the ASEAN Community is the culmination of nearly five decades of collective endeavour, a long way to achieve today ASEAN Community, continued H.E. Hor Namhong, stressing that with 622 million people seeking to build “One Vision, One Identity, One Community”, ASEAN aspires to establish a Community where people continue to participate in and fully benefit from.

Recognized worldwide as one of the most successful and resilient regional organisation with 10 Member States bound together for peace, security, stability and prosperity in Southeast Asia, the ASEAN Community will be a rules-based and outward-looking organization, he added.

“On the way forward, ASEAN Community will follow the path of its Vision 2025 also adopted by our leaders in Kuala Lumpur last November 2015. As a Community, ASEAN brings to fruition the integration process that offers our people new opportunities with a free movement of goods, services, capital and skilled labour, with a view to improving the lives of ASEAN people,” said the Cambodian top diplomat.

On the economic front, “ASEAN Community” will strive to become a single market and production base, a highly competitive, dynamic and innovative economic region, while at the same time ensuring equitable economic development of its members to be fully integrated into the global economy, he underlined.

“We believe that ASEAN Community would attract more foreign direct investment that would help accelerate economic growth and create more job opportunities for our people and also would contribute to eradicate poverty in our region. The ASEAN Community will no longer stand as a loose Association of ten countries for officials to deliberate, issue statements, declarations and so forth, but a proud and promising Community,” he said.

As we are living in the age of globalization, he pointed out, ASEAN has to be an open and outward-looking Community. This is why ASEAN is strongly committed to further enhance its relations with its Dialogue Partners and other external partners.

H.E. Hor Namhong went on to say that for a strong and successful Community, ASEAN should also continue to tackle the existing and emerging regional and global challenges amidst a rapidly evolving regional architecture and a nowadays troublesome world.

ASEAN was established on Aug. 8, 1967, and on Dec 31, 2015, the ASEAN Community was declared.
