A delegation from Switzerland's Chamber of Commerce is keen to know more about investment opportunities in Cambodia, with members saying they are interested because of Cambodia's strong economic growth.

In a meeting with Minister of Economy and Finance Aun Pornmoniroth, Swiss Ambassador to Cambodia Helene Budliger Artieda said the delegation will make visits to Cambodia to discuss investment opportunities with Cambodian officials. Having seen the potential of Cambodia's economy, the Swiss Chamber of Commerce delegation – based in Bangkok, Thailand – wants to explore more.

The Minister said Cambodia welcomes all foreign investors to Cambodia and underlined internal reforms taking place to attract more investment.

“The Cambodian government considers the private sector as the engine for driving economic growth and as a partner for development. At the same time, the government has set a series of reforms aimed at the improvement of the investment environment, economic diversification and the strengthening of the country's competitiveness to attract investment,” he said.

Currently, Cambodia has an organisation that deals with other countries, similarly to AmCham and EuroCham, the members of which establish investment in Cambodia and set up exports to foreign markets. •

Cambodia will renew its memorandum of understanding (MoU) with the European Patent Office (EPO) to boost investment from Europe.

The decision was made during a meeting between Minister of Industry and Handicrafts Cham Prasidh and EPO president Antonio Campinos.

The ministry and the EPO signed the MoU on January 23, 2017.

The Minister requested the EPO help train local intellectual property officials. “Intellectual property work is important and has an impact on the economy,” he said.

Campinos agreed to support the training of human resources in the kingdom and to renew the agreement with the ministry.

“This visit to Cambodia aims to strengthen bilateral relations. We are also attending a conference on intellectual property in Phnom Penh and Siem Reap,” he said.

The Minister said Cambodia works with Singapore, Japan, China and the EU to register and validate patents. Since 2015, the ministry has received 816 patent applications, 150 of which have been finalised.

The EU has filed 230 patent applications in Cambodia. •

A total of 184 soldiers have been deployed to Lebanon to replace Cambodia's United Nations peacekeeping forces there.

General Sem Sovanny, director-general of the National Centre for Peacekeeping Forces, at a sending-off ceremony at its headquarters in Kampong Speu province said the fresh soldiers are from Royal Cambodian Army's Unit 396.

"Unit 396 will join the [peacekeeping] mission in Lebanon and replace Unit 693 who has been in Marjayoun city for one year," he said. "Their tasks include mine clearance and building roads, bridges, hospitals and shelter for UN peacekeeping troops."

Cambodia is the second in Southeast Asia to deploy the most number of peacekeepers overseas.

Kingdom Pilots Digital Currency

PPP/JAN 26

The National Bank of Cambodia (NBC) was among the first central banks to pilot a quasi-form of national payments system called the Central Bank Digital Currency (CBDC), the World Economic Forum (WEF) said at its 50th annual meeting in Davos, Switzerland.

The NBC, the WEF and more than 40 central banks, financial institutions, researchers and global organisations are working together to create the CBDC Policy-Maker Toolkit for countries to analyse the suitability of digital currencies and guide them through the designing and deployment processes, the WEF said.

The past six months have been a wake-up call for central bank policy-makers, as CBDCs have risen to prominence as a potential solution to multiple challenges such as financial inclusion and payment system efficiency.

Government Tackles MSME Challenges

PPP/JAN30

To solve issues like ineffective supply chains and subpar packaging standards, the government is training small businesses through workshops, according to a senior official at the Ministry of Commerce.

The goal is to solve key issues in the micro, small and medium enterprise (MSME) sector to help the country integrate into the regional and global economies, Ministry of Commerce undersecretary of state Bun Chanthy said.

"We are sharing knowledge and skills with MSMEs in Cambodia to help them create effective supply chains in line with Japanese standards," he said.

According to a survey by the Minister of Industry and Handicraft, 99% of Cambodia's more than 500,000 firms are MSMEs and only 5% of them have formally registered.

These firms need assistance in market research, service development, packaging, technology, human resources, access to labour and finance, business registration, taxation, and improving hygiene standards, the ministry found.

The ASEAN Strategic Action Plan for SME (small and medium enterprise) Development 2016-2025 has been drafted in response to these issues. •
