NA Approves Cambodia-China Consulate Convention

Phnom Penh, May 10, 2010
AKP —

The National Assembly unanimously approved here last Friday a consular convention between Cambodia and China by 89 votes in favor out of the total 89 parliamentary representatives present at the session.

The Royal Government of Cambodia and the Government of China signed the consular convention in Phnom Penh on February 25, 2010.

Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation Hor Namhong told the meeting that the purpose of the convention is to strengthen and boost up the long-term relations and cooperation between the two countries – Cambodia and China and to allow the consular officials to defend the rights and interests of their own peoples in each country. Moreover, he said, the convention will also help expand the trade, economic, investment, culture, tourism, science cooperation between the two nations.

The convention is based on the norm of the 1963 Vienna Convention, which was approved by Cambodia's National Assembly on February 24, 2005 and signed by the King on April 2, 2005.

The convention will also allow each country to open more consulates in their respective countries. Cambodia will open six new consulates in some major cities in China in addition to the six existing ones and an Embassy in Beijing. —

Cambodia's Appeal for International Conference...

Samdech Techo Hun Sen further stressed that Thailand has violated the joint discussion [agreed by the two countries] to settle bilaterally the border problem. "Thailand has internationalized the border issue at the Preah Vihear Temple area in Spain in 2009 and in Brazil this year," he recalled.

"It is not a joke when a country's prime minister mentions about using military forces against other country," said the Cambodian premier, adding that Thai prime minister has violated the articles 2.3 and 2.4 of the UN Charter when he threatened to use military forces against Cambodia.

Samdech Techo Hun Sen reaffirmed Cambodia's constant policy not to use armed forces to settle any problem with neighboring countries, but, he said, Cambodia reserves its legitimate rights to defend its sovereignty and territorial integrity in case of deliberate acts of aggression.

The Cambodian prime minister took the opportunity to deny an information saying that he has authorized the organization of the hatred day against Thailand. "Cambodia has no hatred day against Thailand," he said, affirming that any gathering to demonstrate against Thailand is not allowed in Phnom Penh.

He finally underlined that the border tension between the two neighboring countries was not due to the listing of the Khmer sacred Preah Vihear Temple as a World Heritage Site, but to the Thai encroachment on Cambodia on July 15, 2008. —AKP

PM: Cambodia Has Opened...

“The path Cambodia’s economy is taking is not different from the one Malaysia’s economy and investors used to move on previously in Malaysia. Thus, I believe that experienced Malaysian investors can seize successfully the many investment opportunities still available here as have already done so among others, Tan Sri Dr. Chen Lip Keong for Naga World, AXIATA in telecommunications, Cambodia Utilities in power generation or CAMBREW-Angkor Beer,” he said. “On this auspicious occasion, I am pleased to inform the forum of a recent encouraging news: on May 6, 2010, the National Bank of Cambodia has issued a Letter of Approval in Principle for the establishment and operation of the CIMB (Cambodia) PLC Bank, a subsidiary of CIMB Bank Berhad of Malaysia. I warmly welcome this new investment and wish CIMB (Cambodia) many successes in its operation in the future.”

The Cambodian premier warmly welcomed the visit of the Malaysian prime minister, saying it reflects Malaysia’s attention on the friendship and close cooperation between the two countries. “The presence of Your Excellency Prime Minister and of all the Malaysian delegates and business community representatives will add a new dimension to Cambodia’s socio-economic development effort, through the expansion and strengthening of both countries’ cooperation in the field of politics, security, economy, social affairs, and culture. In this context, we are pleased to see the continuous progress of our friendship and cooperation,” he said.

For his part, the Malaysian premier, Dato’ Sri Mohamad Najib bin Tun Haji Abdul Razak, who co-chaired the forum, said Malaysia has been the biggest investor in Cambodia for 14 consecutive years with investments totaling US$2.19 billion.

Cumulative Malaysian investments in Cambodia during the past two years totaled US$118 million.

Anyway, he called on both sides to broaden the number of goods traded between the two nations. “Currently, our trade base is very narrow, confined to a few products on both sides. Malaysia’s main exports to Cambodia include chemical products, machinery, appliances and electrical products, while we import mostly textiles, clothing, raw rubber, and logs from Cambodia. “I believe that there is still an opportunity to expand the scope of products and services that can be traded between our two countries,” he said. —AKP

Siem Reap airport saw upturn, boosted by South Korean and Japanese visitors

Siem Reap, Thursday, 29 April 2010 —

Siem Reap province saw its total visitors rise by more than 22 percent in the first quarter of 2010, compared with 2009. Bloomberg INTERNATIONAL tourist arrivals surged by almost 10 percent in the first quarter of this year, compared to the same period in 2009, showing key growth in the number of visitors from South Korea, China and Japan.

Government figures received by the Post late Tuesday state that 683,692 tourists came to Cambodia from January to March 2010, a rise of 9.87 percent on the 622,288 arrivals in the same period of 2009.

Potentially high-spending visitors from South Korea were up 31.5 percent, Chinese arrivals were up 27.2 percent, and Japanese visitors rose by 4.7 percent.

Air arrivals increased 10.83 percent to 371,506, up from 335,213 last year, with 10 percent more visitors entering the Kingdom at Siem Reap airport.

Total arrivals in the home province of Angkor Wat rose 22.8 percent, to 366,102.

Kong Sopheararak, director of the Statistics and Tourism Information Department at the Ministry of Tourism, attributed the rise to the resurgence of global travel following “the darkness” of the financial crisis.

He welcomed the rise in visitors from Asia’s more developed nations, saying:

“We now see that they are beginning to stay longer and spend more than last year.”

In 2009, South Korean tourists declined by 26 percent, arrivals from Japan went down 11 percent, and Chinese visitors fell by 1.1 percent.

Revenue generated from the sector declined 2 percent in 2009 to US$1.561 billion, despite overall visitor arrivals increasing.

The president of Cambodia’s Association of Travel Agents (CATA), Ang Kim Eang, noted the increase and commented that the government has opened more border crossings.

He said he hopes that in three years, Cambodia can target the “quality tourism”

Development Bank (ADB) stated was an important factor for sector development earlier this month.

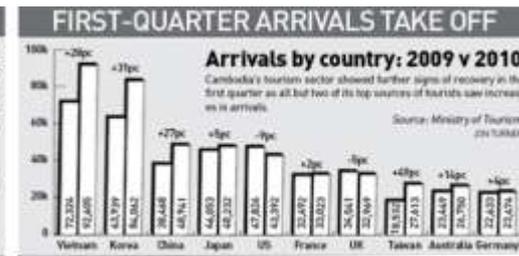

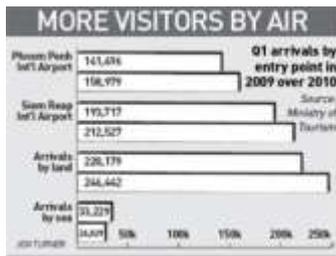

Luu Meng, president of Cambodia’s Hotel Association (CHA), said that occupancy within the hotel industry had risen by up to 10 percent quarter-on-quarter.

The tourists “spend more days here because we have lowered our prices to give them more of a chance to visit the country”, he said.

According to the data, tourist arrivals increased by 6.36 percent in January, by 10.74 percent in February and by 12.79 in March.

Ang Kim Eang predicted that the trend will continue. “I am optimistic that the foreign tourists will keep increasing. People are just getting to know our country after the long-lasting civil war,” he said. — phenom-penhpost.com
