Cambodia Future Leaders Study The ASEAN Message

PHNOM PENH, 16 March 2012 – It was a colourful and lively meeting between Cambodia's current and future leaders and, high on the agenda, is how Cambodia's national development, is intertwined with the fate of ASEAN.

On one side are some 3,500 university students--all decked out in ASEAN T-shirts and waving the ASEAN and Cambodian flags. They had come from all disciplines: Cambodia's future doctors, lawyers, economists, artists, senior civil servants -- you name them and they were represented here.

"We are a small country. We only have 14,000,000 people. Nobody knows about us. We become ASEAN Chair so everyone knows about us," said Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation of Cambodia Hor Namhong. Responding to a question about the significance of Cambodia being ASEAN Chair, the senior leader added, "This is not the first time we chaired ASEAN. With our experiences in 2002, I am confident that we will be a successful chair this year."

Reinforcing the message, Dr Cham Prasidh, Senior Minister of the Ministry of Commerce, explained the relevance of Cambodia's theme for its Chairmanship of ASEAN, which is "One Community, One Destiny".

"ASEAN tries to promote the integration through narrowing the development gap, and benefit our ASEAN peoples—including Cambodian. It is you—as the young people—who will benefit from it, not us. We at the government level will take all effort to pave the way for our young people to grow, so it is your responsibility to decide what you're going to do with all the benefits," said the Commerce Minister, discussing ASEAN Free Trade Area (AFTA), and how this cooperation will benefit the students in the future. He also urged the students to do their part to ensure Cambodia's smooth organization of the meetings.

To illustrate the comprehensive programmes which ASEAN had undertaken to help the region, Mr Sun Chanthol, Senior Minister Advisor to the Prime Minister, and Minister for ASEAN Socio-Cultural Community (ASCC), pointed out issues such as pollution, green technology, climate change, which are covered by the community.

The event drew participation of 18 state and private universities. It is part of Cambodia's efforts to bring the ASEAN message to the people.

In his closing remarks at the National Seminar, Excellency Hor Namhong thanked Dr Surin Pitsuwan, Secretary-General of ASEAN, and his staff at the ASEAN Secretariat, "for sending our students the beautiful ASEAN T-shirts, flags and publication for the benefit of our young people to know ASEAN better."
